

Rejoice!

This week is one of great religious significance for both Christians and Jews, with the former group celebrating Easter and the latter observing Passover. In recognition of this holy season, Suburban PEOPLE salutes local churches and synagogues in stories and photographs found on pages 5-11, along with notices concerning various congregations' Holy Week services. Also, see below for messages concerning each of these religious observances, written by two local religious leaders, the Rev. Jerry R. Turner of Government Street United Methodist Church and Rabbi Stanley Gerstein of Dauphin Street Synagogue.
